

Hey Y'all!

read these next

READ THIS NEXT! APRIL

APRIL

The Husbands

Holly Gramazio

A wonderful romp of a debut novel. Every page is both fun and funny and the suspense for how she'll finalize things will keep you reading.

– Josh Niesse, Underground Books, Carrollton, GA

A Really Strange and Wonderful Time : The Chapel Hill Music Scene: 1989-1999

Tom Maxwell

An illustration of how indie music created a magical Third Place...An eloquent honoring of a place and time where indie rock was paramount and the community was passionate for it.

– Jamie Fiocco, Flyleaf Books, Chapel Hill, NC

How to End a Love Story

Yulin Kuang

It's actually unfair how good this book is. Kuang seamlessly weaves together grief, trauma, and hope in a way that cracked me open.

– Gaby Iori, Epilogue Books

Chocolate Brews, Chapel Hill, NC

Colton Gentry's Third Act

Jeff Zentner

I loved this story about second (and third) chances and re-kindled young love in a small southern town. Themes of alcohol addiction and commentary on American gun violence give the story a depth that would make this romance a fabulous book club selection.

– Jessica Nock, Main Street Books, Davidson, NC

Women! In! Peril!

Jessie Ren Marshall

I'm happy to report that Women! In! Peril! lives up to its obsession-worthy title and cover. This short story debut is full of smart, fresh fiction that I wanted to savor.

– Julia Lewis, Fountain Bookstore, Richmond, VA

READ THIS NEXT!