

Hey Y'all!

read these next

READ THIS
MAR&APR KIDS NEXT!

MAR&APR KIDS READ THIS NEXT!

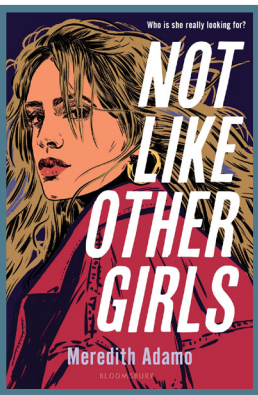

Snail

Minu Kim, Mattho Mandersloot (Trans.)

What a delightful book. I absolutely adore the illustrations, black and white drawing with minimal use of color

– Keeshia Jacklitch, Bookmarks, Winston-Salem, NC

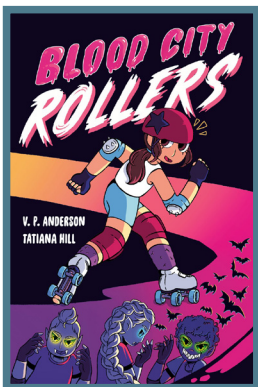

Not Like Other Girls

Meredith Adamo

This is a teen thriller where the disappearance at the heart of the narrative is simultaneously at the side of the narrative. The true story is that of the main character, Jo-Lynn, and her desperate struggles to regain her footing emotionally, socially, and academically after experiencing sexual trauma. I loved it.

– Kate Snyder, Plaid Elephant Books, Danville, KY

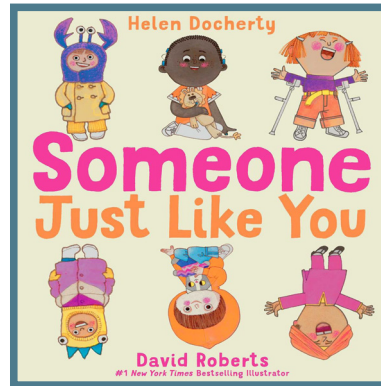

Blood City Rollers

V.P. Anderson, Tatiana Hill (Illus.)

Fast moving, silly, with just the right amount of character introspection...Mira's journey is very literal in that she gets injured and can no longer skate, disrupting her parents' plans for the Olympics. Luckily, she's kidnapped by a vampire roller derby team who is in desperate need of a "mandatory human member."

– Jamie Kovacs, Flyleaf Books, Chapel Hill, NC

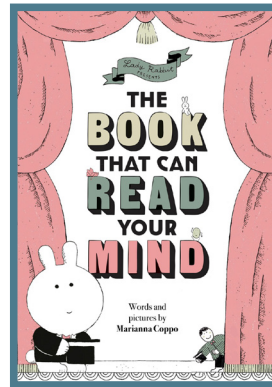

Someone Just Like You

Helen Docherty, David Roberts (Illus.),

I love this fun story about what makes us unique AND what unites us with others who may not look like us or speak the same language. Great for teaching empathy and kindness, to others and ourselves!

– Jessica Nock, Main Street Books, Davidson, NC

The Book That Can Read Your Mind

Marianna Coppo

Is this a picture book? A magic trick? It's pure fun! You will want to read this over and over again.

– Rae Ann Parker, Parnassus Books, Nashville, TN

The Black Girl Survives in This One

Desiree S. Evans (Ed.), Saraciea J. Fennell (Ed.)

I love a horror anthology and a final girl story is even better! This book is a mix of powerhouse authors of color that portray strong black women triumphing over baddies - both human and not. Don't worry, not EVERYONE survives so you'll still get lots of heart pounding terror, thrills, and chills - plus a side of humor in some tales.

– Andrea Richardson, Fountain Bookstore, Richmond, VA